SUMMARY.

Heavy bombardments occurred on both sides in the Somme region on Sunday, otherwise there was no important development.

The British had strengthened and improved their new position.

Five hundred German dead bore witness to the heroic struggle at Maucourt-le-Petit.

The English were irresistible. The Germans, realising that they were beaten, ordered up what was left of the Prussian Guard.

The British inflicted cruel loss on the German Emperor's picked troops.

The British charge was dramatic.

The British in many cases threw themselves on the ground, and shrieked for mercy.

The Germans by a surprise attack under cover of a fog captured La Maloisonne and Bapaume.

The French made a vigorous counter-attack, and recaptured both places. They also captured a small town to the north.

There is great activity among the French and Russians on the Somme-Champagne front.

The English batteries have executed a determined fire on the German defensive works at Goumire, Steinmire, and Heisau.

There was a fairly lively bombardment at Chateauneuf, in the Verdun region, on Sunday.

The French carried some trench elements across the Hill 204.

A German communiqué says:—The French attacked south-west of Thiaumont, and penetrated small sections on our first line.

A Paris message remarks:—Our Russian Allies have received their baptism of fire on the Front.

On Sunday some Russian companies engaged in the German trenches, and secured a number of prisoners.

The German Emperor is reported to have promoted several generals holding important commands.

The Germans, it is stated, intend to initiate a starvation policy to compel Belgium to sue for peace.

Last week's fighting along the Stohed River, near Kovel, was the fiercest characterised.

Both sides lost heavily, although the enemy suffered more. The Germans are constantly shelling our guns and machine-guns.

At one point the Russians forced a crossing over the Stohed, in the force of the concentrated fire of eight German batteries.

On the right bank of the Stohed positions the Russians advanced in the region west of Kovel.

A Russian torpedo boat destroyed 26 sailing vessels in the Black Sea.

An Austrian communiqué says: We repelled Russian attacks near Lucina, Bukovina.

A Russian message says that Russia has decided to construct 65 new railways.

Half a million Austrian prisoners have gathered in eastern Russia, harried in the winter.

The Italian front heavy fighting continued at several points. The Italians progressed in the Caucasus penetrated to the town of Bajurt. The Turks hastily retreated westward.

Two British columns traversed 60 miles in the Tigris Peninsula, and raided the Turkish fortifications south-west of Musch.

A Turkish division, which recently arrived from Anatolia, is marching along the valley of the Euphrates.

The United States Government has decided that the German submarine Deutschland is not a warship.

Hundreds of Australian men, leave from Southern Plain and the Western front, are sailing in London.

The final session of the State Parliament will be opened at noon to-day.

Legislation to give effect to the 6 o'clock of hotel bars will be amongst the bills to be introduced.

Mr. Smith yesterday resumed his position as Minister for Public Instruction in the Government.

A number of alterations have been made in the charge for cab hire. Only 60s weight of luggage will be allowed free.

The Prohibition Party has protested against the Government permitting the sale of soft drinks between 6 and 11 p.m.

Members of the Farmers' Conference visited the Soldiers' Club yesterday, and were well-received by the committee.

The Government is considering a new scheme of subsidising the public parks.

A scheme is to be submitted to the Cabinet which will provide a lump sum for its implementation.

Mr. Ashford thinks that New South Wales will well follow the New Zealand system of encouraging tourists.

The question of licensing the fruit stands in the city has been again discussed by the City Council last night.

The matter was referred back to the health committee for further consideration.

The Lord Mayor's minute in favour of the widening and beautification of Randwick-road was approved by the City Council.

The City Council has decided to grant an acre of land at Moore Park for High School purposes.

The waterside workers at Greymouth decided to favour a general strike as a protest against national service.

The question of licensing the William-street widows pointed out that it is likely to result in the resumption scheme.

The Lord Mayor promised to secure an audience to meet such cases.

At the City Council meeting a motion to demand the demolition of William-street premises was carried.

It is possible that the demolition of the buildings will be carried out by Mr. Hughes.

A number of men at the Naval Dockyards were forced to be thrown out of work with the probable result of unemployment.

The Government intends to make 200,000 acres of stock routes available for settlement. Friday night was being eradicated.

The fifth casualty, Harry, records 45 deaths, 90 others, and men wounded, and 240 ill.

The greater and south Bulli collieries were closed yesterday owing to grievances with the workers.

General rates and goods are expected in the Murray and Murrumbidgee catchment areas within the next few days.

A branch broke away from its moorings in Wollongong Harbour, and was wrecked on the rocks.

October 27 has been fixed as Repatriation Day. Arrangements have been made for a repatriation campaign.

As a result of the Commonwealth Commission's report, the rights of citizens and permanent subjects have been raised.

A boy's market prevalent on the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday, with quotations

The Mining market was fairly active, with prices all round.

A Government proclamation yesterday brought all brands of bacon into line as regards prices.

Stocks of cheese were light. Shipments from the south Coast were smaller than usual.

The butter markets of the Commonwealth are weak.

Tasmanian potatoes were 10/-, a ton lower down.

At Hobart sales, despite a small supply of sheep prices were very high.

All lambs brought forward were sold as sheep, and were two-grown animals.

Cattle were firm throughout the day, although many were of inferior quality.

Forecasts:—Widespread rains approaching from the west; some heavy falls likely, with northwesterly winds.

NEW FRONT HELD.

RUSSIANS.

ATTACK AT RIGA.

CAUCASUS ADVANCE.

The British Commander-in-Chief's report shows that up to noon on Sunday the British were engaged in strengthening and improving their newly-won positions in the second and third German lines, north of the Somme.

The French report that the Germans crept up under cover of a fog on Saturday night, and recaptured Bapaume and Maisonneuve, south of the Somme. They were promptly ejected.

There has been much patrol activity on the Champagne front. The Russian troops who were landed in France in April have received their baptism of fire. They successfully raided enemy trenches.

The French report having made small gains on the Verdun front.

There is meagre news from the Eastern front. Enemy communiques suggest that a great battle has developed south-west of Lutsk. The Russians advanced to new positions south-west of Riga.

The Russians report that they are successfully advancing in Asia Minor, west of a line running from Lake Van northwards to Trebizond. They have seized positions at different points, and penetrated to Balburt, an important town between Erzerum and Trebizond.

IN THE THIRD LINE.

POSITIONS STRENGTHENED.

LONDON, July 17.—General Sir Douglas Haig, reporting on Sunday, says:—There were heavy bombardments by both sides, otherwise there was no important development in the Somme region.

We are continuing to find large quantities of armament and other abandoned war material in the positions we captured on Friday and Saturday, including 40 heavy howitzers and four 77-mm. guns.

HONOURING THE WOUNDED.

Flags were waving everywhere on Friday outside wayside cottages and barns. Picturesque banners were strung across the streets in old French towns. Women and children carrying the tric lour escorted the ambulances, the wounded were among the first to enter Longueval. Their blood awoke with the music of the bugles, they crossed 1200 yards of open ground, encircled by machine-guns and shell-fire. The Germans also used smoke bombs. The Highlanders, all carrying bombs, hurried themselves forward to their bloody work.

WEST KENTS RESCUED.

The Germans dropped high explosives through the naked trees of Trones Wood, opening great craters. Our men used these pits as a refuge, praying that no shell would come in the same place. Wounded men crawled back, bleeding from shell hole to shell hole. Those not wounded crawled forward in the same way, keeping their bombs ready. Thus they captured the wood. A queer mistake happened. A number of dirty, ill-looking English boys came out of some holes ahead, and shouted, "Hullo, lads!" Others stood by, down their sorry faces.

These were 30 West Kents who, with one officer, had been isolated by the enemy's barrage fire. Detachments of Dragon Guards and Deccan Horse came into action at 5 p.m. in the evening, in true cavalry form.

A detachment was thrust forward at Fricourt Wood, the enemy's third line, and covered the troops which are strengthening and improving our positions. The detachment at daybreak returned to the main line unscathed.

PRUSSIAN GUARD DEFEATED.

A Paris telegraph says that 1500 German dead bore witness to the heroic struggle at Bapaume-Petit. The British were repelled. The Germans, realising that once more they were beaten, moved up what was left of the Prussian Guard. But the British inflicted cruel losses on the German Emperor's picked troops. The British routed the Germans, took Longueval in 25 minutes. The South Africans took Delville Wood, north of Longueval.

PLEASED PARISIANS.

Never have such joyous spirits been displayed by the large Sunday crowds surging the streets of Paris. There were visible tributes to the British, such as "John Bull" has the Bowles on the run. Sir Douglas Haig's name was affectionately mentioned. All agree that the British fought with unequalled courage, dash and vigour. The results are remarkable, because the Germans had prepared a strong resistance.

WHAT BRITAIN HAS DONE.

The Paris "Figaro" says:—Germany, the second military nation since the days of Rome, whose national industry was war, was armed to the teeth, but had no idea what war really meant. In two years she has produced two armies, which are now to be the targets on the western front. Already she holds up and thunders the mighty German Empire.

GERMAN SURPRISE ATTACK.

A French communiqué issued on Sunday states:—The Germans, by a surprise attack, under the cover of a fog, took La Maisonneuve and Bapaume, and counter-attacked vigorously, and recaptured both. We also captured a small wood to the northward.

We brought down eight German aeroplanes in the Somme region.

GERMAN UNEASINESS.

A Copenhagen message says:—The one-time monarchs of the Anglo-French forces is reflected in a new tone in the German press. A long significant article appears in Berlin newspapers extolling Germany's right to listen to those demanding a general strike with a view to ending the war. It appeals to the popular for magnanimity and not to hamper the military organisation by compelling them to deal with enemies at home while the Anglo-French and Russians are standing at the vast fronts, threatening to penetrate the Fatherland in the autumn. "Our enemies," continues the article, "outnumber us by two to one. Japan is sending them enormous quantities of food and ammunition. Germany depends on her own production. The British bombardment for seven days was murderous. Our staff admits our inferiority in artillery. Have we any surety that the furious attacks at the gateways of the Empire will still fail? Therefore we must be united."

GENERALS DISMISSED.

A Rotterdam message says that the "Berliner Tageblatt" reports the German Emperor has pensioned seven generals holding important war commands. All tendered their resignations.

Generals von Broeck, von Wensowksi, Glodke, Cramet, and von Bauer will definitely leave the army. General von Kleist and Klemmer have been given command of home garrisons.

The reason for the dismissals is not as signed.

BELGIAN EFFORTS.

A Belgian communiqué issued on Sunday states:—During the week our batteries have executed a destructive fire on the German defensive works at Dixmude, Driegraeten, Steenstraet, Heitzen, and Boesinghe.

ENEMY'S REPORTS.

A German communiqué says there has been strong artillery activity on both sides of the Somme. Four British attacks on Ovillers and Bapaume-Petit during the afternoon broke down in front of our lines, also an attack which commenced in the morning eastward of Bapaume.

Lively fighting developed on Saturday evening southward of the Somme and south of Bapaume. We re-occupied portion of Bapaume, capturing over one hundred prisoners.

We repelled with very heavy losses. French attacks near Barleux and Estrees. Infantry fire brought down an enemy aeroplane west of Estrees. A damaged biplane landed in our lines at Nesle.

THE SECOND LINE.

HOW IT WAS PIERCED.

GALLANTRY OF TROOPS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs (correspondent for the "Daily Chronicle") writes:—It still seems rather marvellous that we have broken through, and are beyond the enemy's second line of defence, on a two and a half miles front. Men in the regiment who fought at Mons, remembering the German avalanche, contrast with this our achievement, saying we have broken the spell. This is the belief of those who have been standing for a year in the trenches staring through the pop-holes at the signs of German main lines of barbed-wire, fortified redoubts, machine gun emplacements, and an almost system of earthworks, which make one cold to cold to see in the aeroplane photographs.

We always knew we could break the first line as at Neuve Chapelle and Loos, but the problem of deeper penetration was hard to solve. No one on the West front had found a formula to carry the line without causing a deep check in a river of blood. It was my task to give the news to some of the earliest wounded returning from the battlefield. The wounded eagerly questioned me. When told that we had got right through they cried, "Splendid!" A doctor emerged from an operating theatre in a field hospital, busy with the men who were unable to answer his questions. He almost doubted my news, and said he hardly thought we could do it. The news spread quickly behind the lines. There was a queer thrill in the air, exciting the men with the promise of victory. Imagination had visions of an immediate German rout. The French people's piety is enormous. They did not expect a quick ending. Some young British officers and men believe we have got the Germans on the run, but they do not remember the enemy's third line, fourth line, and God knows how many more.

CAPTURE OF LONGUEVAL.

The light improved, showing the German shrapnel falling black and thick between Mametz and Bapaume Woods. Our first aeroplane passed forward at 4 a.m. a few minutes later a red glow indicated that Longueval was on fire. The first men returning were the wounded; and some stretcher bearers in grey uniforms with flat, round caps were walking steadily. These were German prisoners paying for the privilege of life. Scottish troops were among the first to enter Longueval. Their blood awoke with the music of the bugles, they crossed 1200 yards of open ground, encircled by machine-guns and shell-fire. The French also used smoke bombs. The Highlanders, all carrying bombs, hurried themselves forward to their bloody work.

VERDUN BATTLE.

FRENCH REPORT GAINS.

LONDON, July 16.—A French communiqué on Sunday evening stated:—There has been a fairly lively bombardment at Châtilloncourt. We carried some trench lines east of Hill 160, and followed up our progress west of Fléury.

A German communiqué states the French were unsuccessful east of the Meuse, despite the bringing up of strong forces against Froide Terre Hill and Fléury. The French made repeated assaults south-west of Thiaumont during the evening, and penetrated small sections of our first lines, where fighting continues.

RUSSIANS IN FRANCE.

PATROLS ACTIVE.

LONDON, July 17.—A Paris message says:—Our Russian allies have received their baptism of fire on the French front. On Saturday, after excellent French artillery preparations, some Russian companies entered the German trenches and secured a number of prisoners.

A French communiqué, issued on Sunday afternoon, reported:—There is great activity among the French and Russian patrols on the Champagne front.

MONEY FOR UNITED STATES.

LONDON, July 17.—The Allies' war orders placed in the United States represent a total of £600,000,000, including blankets, machinery, and locomotives. Mr. Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Company, has erected a plant at a cost of £50,000,000 for the manufacture of shrapnel boxes alone.

A French communiqué, issued on Sunday afternoon, reported:—There is great activity among the French and Russian patrols on the Champagne front.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LONDON, July 17.—A Copenhagen message says that Russia has decided to construct 65 new railways, covering 31,000 kilometres. Half a million Austrian prisoners have gathered an enormous Russian harvest in the southern districts.

GERMAN REGIME.

STARVING THE BELGIANS.

LONDON, July 17.—A Belgian politician is in receipt of a remarkable letter from relatives in Belgium describing the starvation conditions and the ruthlessness of the German regime.

Starving people in many towns in Flanders—notably at Renaix, St. Nicholas, Lokeren, and Termonde—held a demonstration in the streets with placards bearing the words "Bread or Death". Many riots occurred. The Germans sabred the demonstrators. The Germans are forbidding demonstrations, the penalty being five years' imprisonment. They continue to make extensive regulations, including half of the sugar in Belgium. The cattle and horses in several of the communes are on the verge of starvation. Potatoes purchased in Holland, and which arrived in Antwerp, have disappeared. The Germans do not conceal their intention of instituting a systematic policy of starvation to compel Belgium to raise her voice in favour of peace.

THE DEUTSCHLAND.

LONDON, July 17.—It is believed a great convention of Nationalists is being arranged in Dublin during the present week. It is not known whether the military will permit it to be held.

One hundred Irish prisoners who have been released arrived in Dublin this morning. Elaborate precautions were taken to prevent disturbances. They landed quietly and dispersed with waiting relatives.

GERMAN LIES.

LONDON, July 17.—A German correspondent claims that the Germans have got in their way! They tackled him with bare hands, and wrenched rifles from them. The German chief commander grabbed the Germans by the neck and choked them back over the parapet, where they rolled down among the remnants of their own entanglements.

"I rounded them up with a revolver. We

BATTLE SOUTH-WEST OF LUTSK.

LONDON, July 17.

A Russian communiqué on Sunday night stated:—On the right flank of the Riga positions we advanced in the region west of Kamenka (half way between Erzingen and Erzingen), capturing 18 Turkish officers, 100 Askers, and many machine guns.

One of our torpedo-boats destroyed 26 sailing vessels in the Black Sea.

A German communiqué says:—The Russians unsuccessfully counter-attacked against our line in the region of Skroblia, which Prince Leopold of Bavaria captured. General von Linssen is counter-attacking south-west of Lutsk.

KABO,

THE LIVE MODEL
CORSETS,

which are made, not merely according to size, but according to "type," so that a woman can be assured of a perfect fit even though she is not a regular size. The KABO Corsets are designed and drafted on the natural lines of the female figure, and the latest living models being employed for that purpose. Drapers everywhere sell KABO. Wear them for comfort.

CALOX TOOTH
POWDERS.

The vital feature in connection with the use of Calox is the Oxygen. When the dentine of the tooth is in contact with the denture, the Oxygen is released; then there's sharp and instantaneous action, and the denture—the oxygen—will be freed at speed.

AS FOR CALOX.

CLEARING-UP WEEK AT WATERS'.

After the busy time of the Sale, a clearing up of our stock is necessary. Many items have almost sold out, as well as those in which we are overstocked, and must be sold; and in order to do this, we are offering them.

REMARKABLY LOW PRICES.

In addition to the goods advertised, many other items are presented at great reductions, on account of being in small quantities, and for the same reason we are advertising them, as they sell out quickly.

SYDNEY SHOW.

A cordial invitation is given to visit our Show at the Metropole Hotel. We will display special important novelties and articles, especially appropriate for the coming season.

There will be the latest ideas from London and Paris, and the latest novelties in Ladies' Costumes, Exclusive Millinery, Safety Linings, Exclusive Denim, Hosiery, and Footwear—in fact, everything necessary for a perfect outfit.

Mr. Trenerry, with a special staff, will be at our Show, and we trust to be favoured with your esteemed patronage.

Our General Manager, successor to Madame Mason, will be in attendance with special models.

Madame Mason's living models being employed for that purpose.

Drapers everywhere
will be pleased to call.
